

Music | Bittles' Magazine: The music column from the end of the world

With the Brexit referendum looming most people in the UK are asking themselves, 'How would a separation from the rest of Europe affect the price of vinyl?' The simple answer is that the price will rise! The main reason for this is that most of the pressing plants are based on the mainland, (and that's not even figuring in having to pay import duty on those desired new 12inches on Kompakt, Workshop or Ostgut Ton). A convincing argument if ever there was one for any music fan in the British Isles to vote REMAIN. By JOHN BITTLES (mehr ...)